

Ahava Reflections

Start of November Edition

Thoughts From The Week

The leaves are falling one by one hurrah, hurrah! As you enter into the Avaha class room you are greeted with the sweet and calming smell of cinnamon. As the children use cinnamon-scented brooms to pretend to rake fall leaves, we sing, "The leaves are falling one by one" to the tune of, "The ants go marching one by one". We are using tweezers and pom-poms to work on fine motor skills, however the children expanded their play by taking the pom-poms into the kitchen; making heartwarming soup to keep us warm on these cool days.

TORAH AURA

We loved learning about the tent of Avraham, how it was opened wide to welcome guests. We also welcomed a new boy to our classroom, Moshe Kennedy. We saw how in the Torah, Sarah brought in the beautiful Shabbat. She lit the candles, baked the Challah and there was a cloud of softness all around her. Shabbat Shalom!
